Contest Over Office of Treasurer of Dinwiddle County Ended. Special to The Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 9.—In the Circuit Court of Dinwiddie County, Judge B. A. Hancock presiding, last Thursday, the application of S. Y. Gilliam, for mandamus against Harris, for the office of treasurer The of the county, was heard on a demurrer filed by John Y. Harris, through his counsel. Judge Hancock overruled the demur-rer, and the case came up for trial to-day. The court, after hearing argument unsel on both sides, required the board of election canvassers to recanvass the returns and count the votes from Ritchieville and Westboro precincts, which were thrown out on the former trial of the case in the County Court, and the clerk of the court was ordered to award a certificate of election to Gilliam. Gilliam, however, will not be allowed to qualify as treasurer of the county until the court has passed on the question as to whether or not he has received any emoluments from the United States government since he was elected to the office of treasurer of the county. The hearing of this question is set for the 18th instant,
